

The heart warming story of Ayla

This is all about Ayla, a beautiful affectionate little dog, who came into our care a few weeks ago. We found out that Ayla had been abandoned in a mountain village when the family that owned Ayla decided to move to a new place to live.

Ayla is such a clever little thing that she managed to walk a very long way down the mountain to find our vet in the local town.

After being checked out and cared for by the vet she arrived at the shelter but it was obvious that shelter life would be too much for her as she was very small and quite timid so we started the search for a foster home. One of the organisations we work with in the local city managed to find her a foster home and subject to her being OK with cats all would be well.

Well you will see from the video below that Ayla passed her cat test with flying colours but there is even better news to come, when Ayla got to her new foster home the foster parents loved her so much they decided to keep her. They have failed as 🚫 foster parents but such a good outcome for Ayla who is now renamed Tilly.

A mountain of food

The very large van arrives laden with food

We now have to take care of over 300 dogs at the shelter.

Can you imagine how much food it takes to keep them all healthy and fit?

The answer is that we have a food delivery once every 18 days and we need 185 x 15 kilo bags of food. That's 2775 kilos of food every 18 days which is 4625 kilos per month.

That costs us a great deal of money which is why if you can help us we desperately need your donations.

Then a human chain loads the food into our very large vermin proof container

The superyacht captain who fell in love .....

Pelin as a puppy in the shelter

We are very lucky at the shelter we have a small army of helpers who come and walk the dogs. At certain times of the year when the superyachts are in the local harbour we are blessed with lots of extra help from very enthusiastic crew members.

The captain of one of these crews who is a regular helper met and fell in love with one of our dogs called Pelin. From that moment on the captain was determined to rescue Pelin and give her a forever loving home back in the captain's home country.

A few months passed before Pelin was ready to travel having had all of her injections and tests which need to be done before a dog can travel between countries. Now Pelin (renamed Amore) lives in her loving home with the captain's family.

We continue to depend on our friends and supporters for all of the help they provide. We could not continue to do what we do without your kind donations each month. If you know of anyone who can provide us with more financial security to continue what we are doing then please contact us.
